— THE — 'RATIONAL' PATENT FIREPLACE

Is a fire on the hearth. The hearth is level with the floor, so that the heat from the fire can radiate to the feet of persons using the room, instead of being driven up the chimney, and it allows the floor of the room to be swept in the proper way, that is, towards the fireplace, and thus keep down the dust as much as possible. There is no direct air supply beneath the fire-grid; the hot-air chamber beneath promotes perfect combustion.
